

TRIUMPH OF THE TIGERS.

Continued from first page.

Yale's goal. It was swift, clean, straight footwork that Princeton was playing; not a slip, not a fumble, and try as the Elis would for the honor of their alma mater, they could not turn the tide. So it was that Princeton tied the score. Baird falling on the ball across the line score. Baird falling on the ball across the line score. Baird falling on the ball across the line score.

STILL GOING THROUGH YALE'S LINE. But she didn't need to. She was going through Yale's line as if it had been a paper wall and all the Yale men paper bricks. Her interference was perfect. She seldom fumbled, and she kept at Yale's line like a terrier at a rat. Baird's goal kicking was decidedly off color in the second half, but a few points more or less didn't matter to the Tigers. So, "Johnny" missed three goals. He never missed even himself.

There was not much Yale cheering after the first few minutes of the second half, because the hoped-for brace did not come. So the mist fell heavier and the night settled closer, and the blue flags dropped lower as the Princeton score climbed higher, until the referee's whistle blew for the last time, and the multitude began its wild scramble for the trains. A stampede it was. The platforms and the stairs of the station fairly groined under the weight, and the mob that fought up the stairs was not nice for women.

HOW THE GAME WAS PLAYED.

PRINCETON'S BACKS FOUND BIG OPENINGS IN THE YALE LINE.

KELLY, BANNARD AND BAIRD DID MOST OF THE WORK FOR THE TIGERS—SMITH'S BRILLIANT RUN—YALE'S ONLY TOUCHDOWN SCORED ON A BLOCKED KICK.

The game was to start at 2 p. m., but it did not do so for it was just that hour when a wild cheer arose from those on the grandstands and bleachers as the Yale men were seen coming through the iron gates on the north side of the field. The men from New-Haven tossed the ball about as the gridiron and fell upon it as if it was one of the greatest things on earth to see. Mud and water had no terrors for these hardy athletes.

Five minutes later there was a roar from the Princeton side of the amphitheatre as Captain Cochran and his trusty warriors fought their way through the crowd in their effort to reach the charmed enclosure. The Tigers took their preliminary practice on the side of the field near Coogan's Bluff, and their practice work was of the kind to please their friends immensely. They practiced, caught and fell on the ball with a precision and confidence that could be seen at a glance that the warriors from New-Jersey were heavier than their rivals from Yale.

The teams lined up as follows:

Yale	Princeton
Left tackle.....	Brokaw
Right tackle.....	Church
Left guard.....	Wade
Right guard.....	Galley
Left halfback.....	Armstrong
Right halfback.....	Armstrong
Left fullback.....	Armstrong
Right fullback.....	Armstrong
Left end.....	Armstrong
Right end.....	Armstrong
Left wing.....	Armstrong
Right wing.....	Armstrong
Left back.....	Armstrong
Right back.....	Armstrong
Left line.....	Armstrong
Right line.....	Armstrong
Left tackle.....	Armstrong
Right tackle.....	Armstrong
Left guard.....	Armstrong
Right guard.....	Armstrong
Left halfback.....	Armstrong
Right halfback.....	Armstrong
Left fullback.....	Armstrong
Right fullback.....	Armstrong
Left end.....	Armstrong
Right end.....	Armstrong
Left wing.....	Armstrong
Right wing.....	Armstrong
Left back.....	Armstrong
Right back.....	Armstrong
Left line.....	Armstrong
Right line.....	Armstrong

Yale won the toss and gave the ball to Princeton, and when the whistle blew the Elis had their backs to the clubhouse, while the Tigers were facing the east. No time was lost in preliminaries, and it was just 2:13 when Baird stepped up to the ball, which rested in the center of the field, and sent it spinning out of bounds near the goal line. The ball was brought back and Baird punted again, this time into the outstretched arms of Hinkley, who made a clever catch and return punt back to the 40-yard line. Baird tried to kick, but Captain Murphy broke through the line like a flash and blocked the kick.

PRINCETON'S OFFSIDE PLAY. Offside play on the part of the Tigers gave Yale five yards, and the followers of the blue yelled with increased vigor. With the ball on Princeton's 40-yard line, Benjamin and Hinkley tried to break through Princeton's line, but they were repulsed each time for little or no gain. The Tigers took the ball on downs on their 40-yard line.

Baird kicked, and the trim-looking Fincke caught the ball. Hinkley and Baird exchanged punts, and the Yale man seemed to be holding his own with the Tigers' fullback, much to the surprise of many well-posted critics. Baird punted again, and when Fincke tried to carry the ball back Cochran and Brokaw were upon him so quickly that he was downed in his tracks. Princeton's line seemed to waver for an instant, and Benjamin slipped between Church and Crowds for a pretty run of about thirty yards. Benjamin had passed most of the Princeton line, and he seemed to have an excellent chance to make a clean run for a touchdown. Church, however, came up from behind with the speed of a locomotive, and, grabbing the West 14th St.

ESTD 1879
1309.
TRADE MARK
"RELIABLE"
CARPETS
PRICES THE LOWEST
In bad times and the highest in good, is the regular rule in carpets.
When trade is dull, carpets must still be made and sold at a loss, or mills closed and a greater loss result.
When prosperity returns, mills cannot be enlarged quickly, so there is a short supply and very high prices. The latter phase is coming fast, and you will save money if you select NOW before prices advance.
Velvet Carpet at 75 cts. per yard.
Superb designs and fabrics in our upholstery department.
Holiday novelties, clocks, bric-a-brac, etc., at money-saving prices.

CASH OR CREDIT
OWPERTHWAIT & CO.
104, 106 and 108 West 14th St.
NEAR 6TH AV.
Bookish Stores: Flatbush Av. near Fulton St.

Waltham Watches

are always guaranteed to be free from any defect in material or construction. The makers particularly recommend the movements engraved with either of the trade marks "RIVERSIDE" or "ROYAL." Made in various sizes for ladies and gentlemen and for sale by all retail jewelers.

Yale back, brought him to the earth with a resounding whack.

Yale then sent Connor through for a gain of a couple of yards. The Princeton men did not like this, and retaliated in such a manner that Yale again lost five yards on account of the Tigers' offside play. Yale had the ball on Princeton's 30-yard line, and her chances for scoring a touchdown seemed excellent, but Fincke made a fumble, and the ball went to Princeton.

YALE BREAKS THROUGH AND SCORES.

Baird's ability as a punter, or his reputation as one, is what probably allowed Yale to score her first and only touchdown. The ball was passed back to the Princeton fullback for a kick, and the Yale line swept past the Tigers in a body. Rodgers was upon Baird before the latter could lift his foot, and when he did make a wild swing for the ball it was too late. The spheroid struck the big Yale tackle full in the chest, and bounded back of the Princeton goal line. There was a scramble to clutch the slippery globe, and when the human heap unwound itself it was seen that Bass was brought him down. The Princeton yell was again in evidence. The rest was easy, as far as that score was concerned. Princeton's Baird, who had been in play with the ball, tried to kick, but he was blocked by the Princeton line.

THE TIGERS SCORE AGAIN.

With the ball near Yale's 10-yard line the New-Haven men consulted and went to the side lines to measure the distance. The ball was then carried to the center of the field, and the Princeton men, the latter scoring the touchdown after ten minutes of actual play. Baird's attempt at a goal was a failure, leaving the score Princeton, 16; Yale, 6.

Benjamin kicked off and Baird returned the ball in like manner. Yale tried to break through the Princeton line, but without much success. Mills made five yards and then three when the ball went back to Hinkley for a punt. He sent it to Princeton's 40-yard line, when the Tigers grabbed it and began to kick. Baird, Kelly and Hinkley pushed open and the Princeton backs were pushed through without much trouble. Yale not getting the ball again, Baird made the touchdown, and Baird missed his try at goal, leaving the score Princeton, 20; Yale, 6.

Benjamin and Baird exchanged punts, when Benjamin was injured and retired. Van Every taking his place. Baird was hurt an instant later and Wheeler went back of the Princeton line. Princeton took the ball in the center of the field, for holding. Wheeler, Baird and Kelly were pushed through the Yale human fortifications for steady gains, the latter was hit hard that he went to the earth with a thud. Seeing that he could not advance, Baird, just as he fell, passed the ball back to Smith with a loss. Baird then kicked to Yale's forty-yard line, where Fincke caught the ball and returned it five yards before he was downed.

PRINCETON BATTERS THE YALE LINE.

Yale again tried to break through Princeton's line, but found it a stone wall, and sent the ball back to Hinkley, who punted to Princeton's forty-five-yard line. Then the Tigers began to play football in earnest, and they swept through the Yale line as if New-Haven had sent down chaff to defend her football honors instead of well-trained athletes. Princeton started in to batter down Yale's defense, and she did it in splendid style. Kelly went past the left guard for three yards and Baird did the same.

In a scrimmage which followed, Captain Murphy was thrown to the ground, and he remained there for an instant. Then he was again in the thick of the fray. Baird was sent through the center for five yards, and Baird repeated around the left end for six more. Kelly repeated for three, and then for two more, and the Princeton contingent was beginning to go wild. Kelly and Baird kept banging against the Yale line, making short gains every time, until the ball had been carried to Yale's twenty-yard line.

Princeton was rushing the ball closer and closer to the Yale goal, and Captain Murphy was pleading hard with his men to stop the rush. They responded eagerly, but that avalanche of muscle was too much for them to check, and the ball was forced to the Yale line. Dashed cautioned the players then. Kelly was checked once, when within about five yards of the goal line, the only time that Yale had been able to stop that terrible shove up the field. On the second down, Princeton had about three inches to make. Baird was fairly picked up in the arms of his brawny friends and carried over for a touchdown. Baird lay prone on the ground long after the pyramid had dissolved, for he knew that he had the ball over the line and he did not intend that any mistake should be made. His face, covered with mud and smiles, presented a peculiar picture, and he scrambled to his feet and took the ball out for a try for goal. He sent the ball between the posts, and the score was a tie, 6 to 6.

Hinkley and Baird exchanged punts, and in a scrimmage that followed Captain Cochran was in a jam. Baird was sent through the center for five yards, and Baird repeated around the left end for six more. Kelly repeated for three, and then for two more, and the Princeton contingent was beginning to go wild. Kelly and Baird kept banging against the Yale line, making short gains every time, until the ball had been carried to Yale's twenty-yard line.

WORKING THE TIGER BACKS.

Princeton retained the ball in short order, and again began to batter down Yale's defense. The Tigers backs were working like demons, and Yale stood helpless. Bannard and Baird, on short rushes, carried the ball to Yale's forty-yard line, when another rally was made by Yale to stop the advance. Captain Murphy was hurt, and after a consultation with the Yale men, they decided to let the ball go. Baird was over. The loss of their captain did not help them, and some of the players showed that they felt their loss. Baird was sent through the center for five yards, and Baird repeated around the left end for six more. Kelly repeated for three, and then for two more, and the Princeton contingent was beginning to go wild. Kelly and Baird kept banging against the Yale line, making short gains every time, until the ball had been carried to Yale's twenty-yard line.

Baird made short gains, carrying the ball to Yale's 10-yard line. Yale took the ball for holding on her 10-yard line, and the shooters for the blue felt more encouraged. Mills saw an opening and dashed through the Princeton cohorts for a nice run of twenty yards, just what he seemed to have, but a clear field, Baird shot through the interference and brought him to the earth.

SMITH'S GREAT RUN.

Hinkley kicked to Princeton's 20-yard line, and Baird caught. The latter, as he fell, passed the ball to Smith, who made a great dash for the Yale side of the field. His interference was superb, and he had covered nearly seventy yards before Rodgers brought him down. The Princeton yell was again in evidence. The rest was easy, as far as that score was concerned. Princeton's Baird, who had been in play with the ball, tried to kick, but he was blocked by the Princeton line.

RODGERS STOPPING SMITH'S STAR RUN.

THE TIGERS SCORE AGAIN.

With the ball near Yale's 10-yard line the New-Haven men consulted and went to the side lines to measure the distance. The ball was then carried to the center of the field, and the Princeton men, the latter scoring the touchdown after ten minutes of actual play. Baird's attempt at a goal was a failure, leaving the score Princeton, 16; Yale, 6.

Benjamin kicked off and Baird returned the ball in like manner. Yale tried to break through the Princeton line, but without much success. Mills made five yards and then three when the ball went back to Hinkley for a punt. He sent it to Princeton's 40-yard line, when the Tigers grabbed it and began to kick. Baird, Kelly and Hinkley pushed open and the Princeton backs were pushed through without much trouble. Yale not getting the ball again, Baird made the touchdown, and Baird missed his try at goal, leaving the score Princeton, 20; Yale, 6.

Benjamin and Baird exchanged punts, when Benjamin was injured and retired. Van Every taking his place. Baird was hurt an instant later and Wheeler went back of the Princeton line. Princeton took the ball in the center of the field, for holding. Wheeler, Baird and Kelly were pushed through the Yale human fortifications for steady gains, the latter was hit hard that he went to the earth with a thud. Seeing that he could not advance, Baird, just as he fell, passed the ball back to Smith with a loss. Baird then kicked to Yale's forty-yard line, where Fincke caught the ball and returned it five yards before he was downed.

PRINCETON BATTERS THE YALE LINE.

Yale again tried to break through Princeton's line, but found it a stone wall, and sent the ball back to Hinkley, who punted to Princeton's forty-five-yard line. Then the Tigers began to play football in earnest, and they swept through the Yale line as if New-Haven had sent down chaff to defend her football honors instead of well-trained athletes. Princeton started in to batter down Yale's defense, and she did it in splendid style. Kelly went past the left guard for three yards and Baird did the same.

In a scrimmage which followed, Captain Murphy was thrown to the ground, and he remained there for an instant. Then he was again in the thick of the fray. Baird was sent through the center for five yards, and Baird repeated around the left end for six more. Kelly repeated for three, and then for two more, and the Princeton contingent was beginning to go wild. Kelly and Baird kept banging against the Yale line, making short gains every time, until the ball had been carried to Yale's twenty-yard line.

Princeton was rushing the ball closer and closer to the Yale goal, and Captain Murphy was pleading hard with his men to stop the rush. They responded eagerly, but that avalanche of muscle was too much for them to check, and the ball was forced to the Yale line. Dashed cautioned the players then. Kelly was checked once, when within about five yards of the goal line, the only time that Yale had been able to stop that terrible shove up the field. On the second down, Princeton had about three inches to make. Baird was fairly picked up in the arms of his brawny friends and carried over for a touchdown. Baird lay prone on the ground long after the pyramid had dissolved, for he knew that he had the ball over the line and he did not intend that any mistake should be made. His face, covered with mud and smiles, presented a peculiar picture, and he scrambled to his feet and took the ball out for a try for goal. He sent the ball between the posts, and the score was a tie, 6 to 6.

Hinkley and Baird exchanged punts, and in a scrimmage that followed Captain Cochran was in a jam. Baird was sent through the center for five yards, and Baird repeated around the left end for six more. Kelly repeated for three, and then for two more, and the Princeton contingent was beginning to go wild. Kelly and Baird kept banging against the Yale line, making short gains every time, until the ball had been carried to Yale's twenty-yard line.

WORKING THE TIGER BACKS.

Princeton retained the ball in short order, and again began to batter down Yale's defense. The Tigers backs were working like demons, and Yale stood helpless. Bannard and Baird, on short rushes, carried the ball to Yale's forty-yard line, when another rally was made by Yale to stop the advance. Captain Murphy was hurt, and after a consultation with the Yale men, they decided to let the ball go. Baird was over. The loss of their captain did not help them, and some of the players showed that they felt their loss. Baird was sent through the center for five yards, and Baird repeated around the left end for six more. Kelly repeated for three, and then for two more, and the Princeton contingent was beginning to go wild. Kelly and Baird kept banging against the Yale line, making short gains every time, until the ball had been carried to Yale's twenty-yard line.

season of 1896. The statement of the trainers of both teams made yesterday morning that both teams were trained to the minute and fit to fight the battle of their lives may now be looked back upon from a retrospective standpoint, and conclusions can be made as to just how much confidence the general public can place in these straws which are intended to show which way the game is going to go. Figures are powerful in argument, and 24 to 6 tells the whole story.

Some say that the game, after it had been going half an hour, was too one-sided to be interesting. Others proclaimed that it was the greatest football brought him down. The Princeton yell was again in evidence. The rest was easy, as far as that score was concerned. Princeton's Baird, who had been in play with the ball, tried to kick, but he was blocked by the Princeton line.

RODGERS STOPPING SMITH'S STAR RUN.

THE TIGERS SCORE AGAIN.

With the ball near Yale's 10-yard line the New-Haven men consulted and went to the side lines to measure the distance. The ball was then carried to the center of the field, and the Princeton men, the latter scoring the touchdown after ten minutes of actual play. Baird's attempt at a goal was a failure, leaving the score Princeton, 16; Yale, 6.

Benjamin kicked off and Baird returned the ball in like manner. Yale tried to break through the Princeton line, but without much success. Mills made five yards and then three when the ball went back to Hinkley for a punt. He sent it to Princeton's 40-yard line, when the Tigers grabbed it and began to kick. Baird, Kelly and Hinkley pushed open and the Princeton backs were pushed through without much trouble. Yale not getting the ball again, Baird made the touchdown, and Baird missed his try at goal, leaving the score Princeton, 20; Yale, 6.

Benjamin and Baird exchanged punts, when Benjamin was injured and retired. Van Every taking his place. Baird was hurt an instant later and Wheeler went back of the Princeton line. Princeton took the ball in the center of the field, for holding. Wheeler, Baird and Kelly were pushed through the Yale human fortifications for steady gains, the latter was hit hard that he went to the earth with a thud. Seeing that he could not advance, Baird, just as he fell, passed the ball back to Smith with a loss. Baird then kicked to Yale's forty-yard line, where Fincke caught the ball and returned it five yards before he was downed.

PRINCETON BATTERS THE YALE LINE.

Yale again tried to break through Princeton's line, but found it a stone wall, and sent the ball back to Hinkley, who punted to Princeton's forty-five-yard line. Then the Tigers began to play football in earnest, and they swept through the Yale line as if New-Haven had sent down chaff to defend her football honors instead of well-trained athletes. Princeton started in to batter down Yale's defense, and she did it in splendid style. Kelly went past the left guard for three yards and Baird did the same.

In a scrimmage which followed, Captain Murphy was thrown to the ground, and he remained there for an instant. Then he was again in the thick of the fray. Baird was sent through the center for five yards, and Baird repeated around the left end for six more. Kelly repeated for three, and then for two more, and the Princeton contingent was beginning to go wild. Kelly and Baird kept banging against the Yale line, making short gains every time, until the ball had been carried to Yale's twenty-yard line.

Princeton was rushing the ball closer and closer to the Yale goal, and Captain Murphy was pleading hard with his men to stop the rush. They responded eagerly, but that avalanche of muscle was too much for them to check, and the ball was forced to the Yale line. Dashed cautioned the players then. Kelly was checked once, when within about five yards of the goal line, the only time that Yale had been able to stop that terrible shove up the field. On the second down, Princeton had about three inches to make. Baird was fairly picked up in the arms of his brawny friends and carried over for a touchdown. Baird lay prone on the ground long after the pyramid had dissolved, for he knew that he had the ball over the line and he did not intend that any mistake should be made. His face, covered with mud and smiles, presented a peculiar picture, and he scrambled to his feet and took the ball out for a try for goal. He sent the ball between the posts, and the score was a tie, 6 to 6.

Hinkley and Baird exchanged punts, and in a scrimmage that followed Captain Cochran was in a jam. Baird was sent through the center for five yards, and Baird repeated around the left end for six more. Kelly repeated for three, and then for two more, and the Princeton contingent was beginning to go wild. Kelly and Baird kept banging against the Yale line, making short gains every time, until the ball had been carried to Yale's twenty-yard line.

WORKING THE TIGER BACKS.

Princeton retained the ball in short order, and again began to batter down Yale's defense. The Tigers backs were working like demons, and Yale stood helpless. Bannard and Baird, on short rushes, carried the ball to Yale's forty-yard line, when another rally was made by Yale to stop the advance. Captain Murphy was hurt, and after a consultation with the Yale men, they decided to let the ball go. Baird was over. The loss of their captain did not help them, and some of the players showed that they felt their loss. Baird was sent through the center for five yards, and Baird repeated around the left end for six more. Kelly repeated for three, and then for two more, and the Princeton contingent was beginning to go wild. Kelly and Baird kept banging against the Yale line, making short gains every time, until the ball had been carried to Yale's twenty-yard line.

Ackerman-Laurance's

"DRY-ROYAL"

One of the CHOICEST DRY Sparkling Wines OF FRANCE.

$21 per case quarts.

We again call your attention to this grand French Sparkling wine . . .

Why Waste Your Money

when you can buy an absolutely pure wine at such a low price? . . .

"Dry-Royal"

Medium Dry.

"Brut-Royal"

Exceedingly Dry.

Baskets containing 12 quarter bottles at $6.75

W. A. TAYLOR & CO., Sole Agents, 39 Broadway, NEW YORK.

How to Cloth the Children.

BEST & CO.

Illustrating the advantages in style, quality, fit and price, of Clothing Children at the "Children's Store."

Handsome Cloaks, of all wool fancy mixed cloth (the cut), large collar inlaid with plain cloth in contrasting colors, 4 to 8 years, $6.75.
Baby Coats, all wool flannel, cape trimmed with braid, sizes, 1, 2 and 3 years, $3.85.
Cloth Finished Flannel Dresses, yoke sailor collar and belt, with fancy silk stitching in contrasting colors, 4 to 14 years, $4.00 to $5.25, as to size.
School Aprons of white lawn; sizes, 4 to 12 years, 48c.
Fine White Aprons, fancy cross bar; trimmed with neat embroidery and ribbons, sizes, 2 to 10 years, 98c.
Fauntleroy Cloth Leggings, extra long, plain colors, $1.25.
One Piece Kilt Suits, strictly all-wool flannel, fast color, trimmed with silk embroidery. Ages 2, 3, 4 and 5 years, $2.00.
Fur Sets, White Thibet, round muff and Russian stole, $4.50.
Electric Seal, round muff and collar, trimmed with heads and tails, $3.75.
Scotch Wool Gowns, double wrist, mottled effects, all sizes, 50c.
Boys' Kid Gloves—wool lined—under lap at wrist, trimmed with beaver fur, all sizes, $1.25.

60-62 West 23d St.

Thanksgiving.

We all have much to be thankful for, and many tables will be especially brightened for this year's feast.

SILVER

will brighten your table and add to its beauty.

SOLID SILVER

exquisitely wrought in artistic and practical forms. Everything needed for use or decoration.

Reed & Barton,

SILVERSMITHS, 41 Union Square, Cor. Broadway and 17th Street, 13 Maiden Lane, N. Y.

LADIES' TAILORING

A FINE ART, THIS MAKING OF LADIES' TAILOR-MADE SUITS

THAT WILL FIT.

Nothing mysterious about it here. Simply a question of giving the best cloths and putting the best possible skill into the work.

HERE'S THE COST.

Ladies' Tailor-made suit to order, silk lined throughout, $45.00.

PERFECT FIT AND SATISFACTION GUARANTEED OR MONEY REFUNDED.

Gerald Lyon

128 West 42d Street.

Prince's Photographs.

Mr. Prince announces an important reduction in the prices of photographs.

Imperial size, executed in the most artistic manner, formerly $8.00, Now $5.00.

With this great attraction in price, the high standard of excellence pertaining to Mr. Prince's work will be strictly maintained.

Visitors are cordially welcomed to Mr. Prince's studio to inspect his exhibition of portraits.

PRINCE,

31 Union Square, Brestano Building, (Broadway, Cor. 16th St.)

C. C. Shayne & Co.

Importers and Manufacturers of Rich Furs

124 and 126 West 42d Street.

BY ORDER of the New York Supreme Court, George C. Austin and August G. Knappe, Receivers of the DAVIDSON & MARBLE COMPANY, FRANK E. GORE, auctioneer, will sell at auction at No. 250 ELEVENTH AVENUE, in the City of New York, on FRIDAY, THE 27TH DAY OF NOVEMBER, 1896, beginning at 10 o'clock A. M. in the forenoon, ALL THE VALUABLE MACHINERY, APPLIANCES, MARBLE MATERIALS, STOCK AND OTHER PROPERTY OF EVERY DESCRIPTION OF THE DAVIDSON & MARBLE COMPANY. There is a chance for Great Bargains. THE SALE IS BY ORDER OF THE COURT, AND WITHOUT ANY RESERVATION WHATSOEVER. Catalogue containing full descriptions may be had at the office of the Receivers, 250 Eleventh Avenue, New York City.

BICYCLE RIDERS SAIL FOR NEW-YORK.

London, Nov. 21.—Twenty-five bicycle champions, including Linton, of England; Dubois, of France, and Haple, of Ireland, sailed for New-York from Southampton on board the steamer St. Paul to-day to compete in the bicycle races in New-York in December.

Continued on Fourth Page.